Major changes at waste commission

by Shawne Mohl

Despite being tight lipped about the exact details, the Mountain View Region Waste Management Commission, who are responsible for the handling of gar-bage pick-up in the Town of Didsbury, are undergoing major changes to their operations

Dave Derksen, chairman of the commission, says that due to legality reasons he cannot release many details, but assures residents that their garbage pick-up will remain to be the highest priority to the commission.

"The Mountain View Re-gional Waste Management Commission is undergoing major changes in it's opera-tion," Derksen said. "The member municipalities of the commission (including Didsbury)... are supporting the commission in their efforts to insure that waste removal services to the residents of this region will be provided in an excellent fashion.

The Town of Didsbury's representative on the com-mission, Clem Kuelker, declined comment, referring all media questions to the chairman.

The waste commission was officially formed in 1999, but it wasn't until 2001 when all of the 2001 membering communities came on board.

Membering municipali-ties, like Didsbury, are cur-rently paying $7 per capita to be a member of the commission.

Derksen says that in the coming weeks more information may be released to

Website costs astound County Councillors

by Tanya Cripps

The hidden costs of constructing a new and improved website for Mountain View County has astounded County councillors.

"I was a little taken back when numbers came back at 000," said County Commissioner Harold Johnsrude. This year Council has budgeted $45,000 to step up communication with rate payers, the local media, and other stake

"Our main concern is communications and marketing," said Johnsrude on the role of the website.

Originally Council was quoted $15,000 for the development of the website from Westar Communication Strategies Limited, the company hired to revamp the County's communication plan. Last Wednesday councillors learned that there will be an additional cost of approximately $30,000 for backend programming. Lynn Haley, with Westar Communication, said this is still an estimate and they will be continuing to get quotes from other companies.

"It depends on how far the County wants to go with it, said Haley.

This backend program-ming includes the development of software and other technical requirements. "We need to decide what we want to get," said Reeve Ian Harvie who questioned why the $30,000 expense was not brought forward earlier.

Johnsrude pointed out that in the first presentation to Council it was mentioned that the backend programming costs were purposely not included, because it was difficult to estimate a cost

I totally agree it is an item not included in the budget," he said.

One of the features of the proposed website is the eCommerce capabilities it will have for future use.

Residents will be able to pay bills, request building permits, and get all of the information they need.

"That is one of the most useful aspects," said Councillor Ron Richardson, adding they need to find out if there will be more costs to implement the eCommerce in the future.

Haley said that sites that offer eCommerce capabilities run from $25,000 to $100,000 depending on how complex the software is. "This is really on the low end."

Chinook's Edge budget receives final approval

Chinook's Edge School Division (CESD) is able to balance their budget for next school year, 2003-2004, but the process isn't sustainable and process isn't sustainable and the Provincial government needs to come up with a more predicable funding system for school divisions, CESD says.

CESD board passed a bal-anced $82.5 million budget last Wednesday, June 25. In order to balance this budget they asked schools to cut back their spending by 1.5 per cent, as well as they were forced to dip into reserves for the third consecutive year to ensure the level service remained at a level that they felt comfortable with.

CESD is expecting to spend $82.5 million in 2003/2004 and based on a predicted enrolment of 10,927 students, CESD expects to receive $79.6 million evenues, forcing Chinook' Edge $2.9 million into the red. In order to balance this deficit CESD will use $2 million worth of reserve dollars, and the additional $900,000 will come from savings through school cutbacks.

As of August 31, 2003 CESD will be just under $4.5 million in reserves, which will decline to $2,507,618 by next year after funds are pulled out balance the 2003/2004 budget

With only $2.5 million left in the bank, this alarms CESD trustees. "We have been told by the Province that we should have at least four per cent in reserves," said board chair, Roy Brassard, adding that the $2.2 million that will be left will only represent about 3.1 per cent.

Susan Roy, CESD Treas-urer, says that this was probone of the toughest budgets that she has ever had to work on at Chinook's Edge. and says that the funding from the Province falls short of that the expenses are for division. "It was definitely a challenging budget," Roy said. "Costs have risen over the years, yet revenues have re-mained at the same level."

Roy says that aside from a lack of funding there are a number of other challenges.
"It was quite a challenge trying to estimate how much utility costs were going to be, or how much salary costs were going to be (because the teach ing contracts expire this August 31)," Roy said. CESD is estimating that the division will spend close to $2 million just on utilities, which doesn't mix well if the teachers settlement comes back even higher then last years figures.

In an effort to help alleviate some of the pressures with sky high utilities the Province has committed $30 million to school boards throughout the Province to help offset the utility costs for this (2002/2003) school year.

$30 million that Chinook's Edge is predicting they will receive between $50 to $60 per student, which totals approximately $500,000 for CESD

This means for next year's budget that CESD will not be carrying forward a deficit in the operations and maintenance budget, which was predicted, which will allow the division to forward the funds back into the general operations budget. Roy Brassard, CESD Board Chair, says that every school board wishes for more money, says that they were grate ful that they even received

"When you have a budget that is as tight as this one every little bit (of money) helps, Brassard said.

According to Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills MLA Richard Marz the Province came through for the school divisions in their time of need, after constantly listening to their challenges

This wasn't in the original budget, but we found it ned sary to do something," Marz said.

Marz says that the Province has struck a committee which will be reviewing the costs of the soaring utilities in the Province, which will hopefully come back with some sort of recommendation to assist organizations like school boards.

"We may have to look at a review or changing the way that we handle the rebate procs," Marz said. For the 2003/2004 school ar there will an overall re duction in the number of teaching staff. CESD is anticipating starting the year with 16 fewer full time teachers. Due to an early retirement package offered to some staff, 18 of which were approved, and also due to movement in the divi-sion, Chinook's Edge has not planned on making any perma-nent staff layoffs.

CESD is also predicting that there will be a cutback in the number of support staff.

"Our division is quite large so to have 16 fewer teaching positions when we have 39 schools, there should be a very minimal impact on the quality of education in Chinook's Brassard said.

Aside from fewer teachers expected for September, there will also be fewer students which means less funding (as CESD is paid on a per-student

CESD projects that they will have 10,927 students for the 2003-3004 school year, a 2.2 per cent decline from the current school year.

Roy says that there may be even more students, but CESD would rather be conservative in their estimates so that they do not run short in their budg-eting process. The budget has now been sent to Alberta Learning for final approval.

Some good news for parents and students is that school fees will remain untouched, and will be charged out at the same amount of last year, despite the financial strains that CESD is experiencing.

Didsburians continue to lobby health minister

by Shawne Mohl

Didsbury residents tend to head south for their health care needs, and have more in common with Calgary - not Red Deer - is the message that a number of residents and local politicians are trying to get across to Health Minister, Mar.

Mar was in Didsbury ap-proximately two weeks ago and with representatives from Didsbury as well as other mu-nicipalities in the area, to try to gather more information to try to figure out which health region the Didsbury hospital should be placed within.

One of the area representatives was Mountain View County's Reeve, Ian Harvie, who agrees that Didsbury's hospi-tal should be placed within the Calgary health region.

Harvie explained that Mountain View County's council passed a resolution stating that they would support the move for the Didsbury hospi-tal to be placed into the Calgary Health Region.

"Our position was to sup-ort Didsbury for the move," Harvie said.

Harvie says that the reason his council felt they should sup-port the move into Calgary re-gion is because nearly 35 per cent of the patients who attend the Didsbury hospital are acDavid Thompson Health Region, which the Didsbury hospital is currently placed.

Local Didsbury resident, Roy Brassard, who is a past Tory
MLA, has been one of the leaders behind lobbying the Minister, although Brassard says he wants to be cautious to ensure that this is the right direction.

The Minister walked away from that meeting and said that he plans to set up a meeting with the Calgary health region board," Brassard said. "We want to make sure that we make the best decision for Didsbury, and we don't end up regretting the direction that we

Mountain View County upset with Province over bridge funding

Province cuts bridge funding, causing broken promises and hard feelings with MVC

by Carla Victor

Another delay and lack of communication with Alberta Transportation has Mountain View County Councillors frus-trated with the cost sharing process of building bridges. Council was informed by

Alberta Transportation that out of the seven projects they thought would begin this year, only three will get the go ahead because of costs go ahead because of costs higher than projected. Ritch Sudeyko, public works superintendent for the county, said approximately seven bridges were approved for construction with three for construction with three more approved for designs. Now three approved projects have delays because of design approval and getting applica-tion approvals from federal waterway and fishery depart-ments. He said it is all some-what confusing to everyone at the county. at the county

DARE program beneficial for students

Mohl

One of my story assignments which I had to cover this week included attending Westglen middle school's DARE graduation, a program which I found to be very beneficial for the students, and I applaud both the school and the RCMP for offering this type program.

While listening to a number of students go through their essays which they were required to write, which explained what they got out of DARE, it was clear the students vere receiving a very positive lesson.

It also brought me back to my high school days, and remembering all of the peer pressure that I, and my classmates, were faced with on a daily basis.

It started in grades as young as grade four, where the stu-dents who thought they were "cool" would come up to my group of friends and ask us if we wanted to buy a cigarette off of them or riends and ask us if we wanted to buy a cigarette off of them for a quarter. I always refused, but many of my friends took to "cool kids" idea and started puffing, which made them sick as a dog, but for some reason grew their ego.

As the years progressed the more harmful drugs started appearing on my school grounds, which I can proudly say I always stayed away from, although I cannot say the same for all my refuse. peers in my class

I was fortunate enough to have had the right group of friends, supportive parents, and a clear head on my shoulders to always turn down drugs and cigarettes, although I cannot say the same for a number of my past classmates who chose the wrong direction.

If the DARE program would have been around while I was in middle school, I feel that many of my past friends would have chosen a different direction and possibly been more successful with their lives. A big congratulations goes out to all of the students who graduated from the DARE program last week.

As well, a pat on the back must be given to the teachers, parents, and RCMP officers who have helped make this program so successful in Didsbury. Your hard work, patience, and time will help many, many students chose to head in the right direction rather then a life of drugs and alcohol.

"Thinking thanks"

by Margaret Fradley

As I was pondering, I began to wonder what others' days and our own day would be like if we all remembered to give thanks throughout the day, if we remembered to thank our spouse or our children for things they contributed to our day; if we recalled to thank that bank teller who patiently waited on us, the store clerk who went the extra mile to take us to some item we were looking for. What about the doctor on whom we have come to depend on so much; in some cases our employees or employers, just simply to let them know we care, that we noticed and that we appreciated what they did. It seems to me we can make such a difference in the very little

We all need to be appreciated, and although we do not do things in order to receive thanks, it is always most encouraging just to hear those words "thank you" - sometimes it seems as though they were hard words to say, we struggle to bring

Each day we have such great opportunities to show our appreciation - just to say "thank you" to those we encounter throughout our day. Giving thanks, thinking thanks and say-ing 'thanks' can make such a difference, it can even become a habit with us (a good habit, I might add). Let's make our day special," for all of you that I have at times taken for granted and not shown my appreciation, I say now, "thank you, and the Lord bless you

FROM THE AILBAG

Beef ban hurting Canadian Producers

Dear editor:

Over a month has passed since the American border and the markets of our trading partners have been closed to Cana-dian beef and cattle exports. The overall magnitude of this crisis can no longer be downplayed by the Prime Minister. Producers truckers, retailers and, indeed all Canadians have felt the impact of this mounting disaster. The cost of the trade ban in the one-month period since a sin-gle Canadian cow was diagnosed with Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE) is esti-mated to be $550 million. If the beef ban does not begin to be lifted until mid-September, a to cost Canada $2.5 billion," according to BSE Economic Impact Assessment, recently released by the Canadian Animal Health Coalition.

These estimates do not in-clude the cost of any loss of trade after the ban on Cana-dian beef and cattle has been lifted or the additional marketing costs that will be needed to revive our export markets.

A four month ban that costs Canada $2.5 billion was considered "a worst-case scenario" when the BSE Economic Impact Assessment was released on June 20th. However, Agriculture Minister Lyle Vanclief admitted to reporters on June 24th that the U.S. government has no timeline for re-opening the border. The prospect of Canadian beef producers losing a billion-dollars or more this summer cannot be ignored.

Just how much more damage the current BSE crisis will do to the Canadian beef industry depends on the U.S. government and our other major trading partners. Minister Vanclief admitted as much during his press conference on June 20th when he said that Canadian beef remains banned for political reasons, not scientific ones

This brings us back to the Prime Minister Jean Chrétien John Manley who should be down in Washington, persuading President Bush to open the border to imports of Canadian beef and cattle. This should be their single highest priority.

Premier Ralph Klein's meet-ing with U.S. Vice-President Dick Cheney was a welcome first sign of high level, bilateral talks on getting the border open as soon as possible. It is unlikely that Mr. Chrétien will be invited to the White House to discuss the beef ban or the plight of the Canadian cattle producer at this critical time. Sharp criticism of the Bush administration and the American people by the Prime Minis-ter, his staff and Liberal MPs is now costing Canadians billions of dollars.

So while our western cattlemen and beef producers should be getting front-and-centre at-tention and assistance from their federal government, they instead find themselves to be the victims of collateral damage caused by Liberal arroince, overt and childish anti-Americanism, and indifference to the West. It is high time for a change of government.

Sincerely, Gerry Ritz Senior Ag. Critic, Canadian Alliance Party

Veterinary surgeon and owner of the Richmond Animal Hospital, Dr. Michael Schaufele has treated too many of these cases.

Every year we see needless deaths as a result of heat exhaustion.

If it's hot out, keep an eye on your dog or cat and keep in mind the warning signs of heat exhaustion.

Exaggerated panting, Salivation, Anxious or staring expression, Weakness, of coordination, Vomiting, Collapse, Convulsions, Coma.

If your pet displays any of these signs, it is very impor-tant that you cool it down right away. Some effective methods are moving your pet into the shade, spraying it with the garden hose, offering cool water to drink and fanning your pet. Do NOT apply ice as it constricts blood flow, which will inhibit cooling. Once your pet has cooled down go directly to your local veterinary clinic for further treatment.

Although heat exhaustion is more common in dogs, cats have been known to suffer as well. "A few minutes in a parked car could mean death for your pet," Schaufele adds, "If it is unavoidable and you must leave your dog or cat in a vehicle for a couple of minutes ensure they have plenty

Misuse of taxpayers money again

Dear editor:

'd like to know if the PMO paid for the hammers, the shipping, and the staff time to execute Eddie Goldenberg's grade-school coup de grace on Liberal Party President Stephen LeDrew. Surely the public would find this an inappro-priate use of the public purse, no matter how rela tively trivial the cost is: mere hundreds of dollars wasted instead of hundreds of millions of dollars?

After all, what's so dif-ferent about this apparent misuse of public funds than George Radwanski wining and dining his staff over a $400 lunch? And look where Mr. Radwanski is

> Sincerely. Michael Watkins

HEALTH REGION

Didsbury's Mayor, Dorothy Moore has stepped off her soap box and says she has started working at forming a healthy relationship with the David Thompson Health Region.

"I still feel that (Calgary) is the best option, but this is the reality and we need a good, strong working relationship with our current health region," Moore said. "We want to keep the doors open and this is my goal."

Moore said. "We want to keep the doors open and this is my goal."
Moore says that rather than, as the Mayor of Didsbury, lobbying to be moved into a new health region she has focused her attention on ensuring that the Didsbury

hospital remains viable, and accessible to patients for the region.

"Calgary, in my mind, is no longer a factor... but to have a viable hospital is," Moore said. "I have to work with the realistics." Moore says that she has met with David Thompson Health Region's chairperson, Jean Graham, and has had numerous other meetings to ensure the quality of the Didsbury hospital continues to improve.

Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills MLA, Richard Marz says that he will listen to his constituents and continue to lobby the Minister of Health and Wellness to have continued from Page 3

"Based on a survey that I did I would support Didsbury being moved into Calgary," Marz said.

Didsbury being moved into Calgary," Marz said.

Marz was also present at the meeting with the Minister held in Didsbury two weeks ago, and says that the Minister has not made any formal decision, adding that Mar was just there to hear and listen to the views of the area residents and politicians. Marz added that a review will be conducted in the fall on the health regions in this area, where a final decision should be made as to which region Didsbury will be placed within.

Estranged wife and boyfriend arrested for murder

Airdrie RCMP arrested two individuals who they have charged with first degree murder for the killing of Nicholas Ross Marayn, 39, of Crossfield.

39, of Crossfield.
Nancy Lee Maradyn
(McKinnon), aged 33 and her 24-year-old boyfriend, Joseph George Bruso have both been arrested and charged with the murder.

RCMP conducted an extensive investiation, and the RCMP's Calgary Major Crimes Unit arrested the couple, without incident, just off of Country Hills Blvd in northwest Calgary, Saturday afternoon.

Maradyn's estranged wife, Nancy, was a City of Calgary transit worker and Bruso was unemployed. Maradyn's body was found murdered on June 14, along Highway 2A just outside of the Town of Crossfield.

His body was discovered inside his vehicle, a 1982 Datsun truck, and RCMP say he died of a gunshot wound.

Both of the suspects will appear in Airdrie Provincial court on Thursday, July 3.

CHINOOK'S EDGE SCHOOL DIVISION WRAPS UP INVESTIGATION

Alleged student poisoners offered reduced charges

by Dan Singleton

Chinook's Edge school girls from Sylvan Lake charged with attempted murder in the poisoning of a female classmate three months ago have been offered a plea bargain

The three girls, two aged 14 and one aged 15, were each charged April 22 with one count of attempted murder and five counts of administering a noxious substance.

a noxious substance.
Seven girls, all students at H.J. Cody school in Sylvan Lake, were taken to the Sylvan Lake Medical Centre on April 17 after consuming a slushie laced with copper sulphate.

The noxious chemi-cal, used in chemistry class labs, was allegedly taken from the school and mixed into a single slushie, police said.

Upon investigation,
the RCMP determined that only one of the girls was the intended target and four others inadvertently consumed the drink. Two of the seven girls are among those facing charges.

Replacement charges were sworn during an appearance in Red Deer provincial court on Wednesday, Crown prosecutor Bert Skinner

Each girl now also faces charges of conspiracy to administer a noxious substance with intent to endanger life, criminal negligence causing bodily harm, and theft under $5,000, he said. Only one of the girls appeared in court on Wednesday; the other two appeared by agent.

All the charges have been laid under the Youth Criminal Justice Act. As such, the girls cannot be named.

The decision to lay the new charges came following a review of the evidence by the Crown and police, said Skinner.

All three girls, who are out on bail, are scheduled to be back in court on July 4 for plea. Should the accused plead guilty to the new charges on that date, the attempted murder charges could be with-drawn, said Skinner.

"That's what would be anticipated," he said. "Should it come to that, I don't think they will be sentenced on July 4. Another later date would be set for that.

The original charges remain outstanding

Asked whether the is seeking jail time for the accused girls, prosecutor Skin-ner said, "all the sen-tencing options are open, including jail." Negotiations between defence and the Crown are ongoing, he con-

"We are hopeful that it can be resolved," he

Red Deer lawyer Kevin Sproule, who represents one of the girls, was not immediately available for comment. However, he said earlier he hopes ongoing nego-tiations will lead to a resolution.

"We're hoping that they will be fruitful," Sproule said. "They will continue for as long as it takes or until it's apparent that we can't reach a resolution."

Medicine Hat lawyer Clinton Yarshenko, who represents one of the girls, was not immediately available for com-

Red Deer lawyer John McBeath, who repre-sents the third girl, declined to comment.

Meanwhile, the Chinook's Edge School Division has completed an independent review of the poisoning incident, finding no problems with the existing safety policy regarding chemical access in schools, said chairman

Roy Brassard. "We've reviewed what has happened, the pro-cedures we used in the past, and I guess we feel we have done just about everything we can to avoid this kind of thing," said Brassard. "We have reviewed everything that was done, and I guess you can never completely eliminate something happen-ing, but we have done everything we possibly can to make sure that it doesn't happen again and that all of the procedures were in place to avoid it in the first

"To be honest and frank, I guess you can never protect yourself from every eventuality

A division-wide 39school safety review is now underway, he said.

We have initiated a view of not only our labs, but also in the In-dustrial Arts programs and throughout the schools to make sure we are up to snuff in all of this. We are going to ini-tiate it for all the safety practices we employ."

"We do a review on an ongoing basis, but we just thought that we should make it official and go through all the schools to make absolutely sure that there is nothing that could hap-pen or would happen."

Riding association making dreams into reality

by Carla Victor

If it's riding week there is little chance Karen Mengerson will forget, her son Mark makes sure by telling her at least six or eight times a day.

Mark, an 18-year-old from Olds with Down's Syndrome, wears an ear-to-ear smile so big it's hard to get his riding-helmet straps on for the one hour he saddles up with Mount View Riding Association (MVSRA)

The MVSRA was formed by dedicated volunteers who recog nized the valuable rehabilitation aspects of pairing up mentally and physically challenged persons with gentle, trustworthy horses and volunteers.

Starting out in 1983 with six volunteers and 20 riders, the people involved with MVSRA have more than quadrupled.

What began as four riders per class, once a week for 10 weeks in spring, is now up to six riders per class, six times a week. Karen remembers when

Mark began riding at the age of seven. He was very small for his age, he rode a horse named Sun-beam and stood only as high as the horse's knee. The first ride for Mark was a huge accomplishment and the result of many years of work. "Mark was very afraid of ani-mals. When we first introduced him to a lamb at Olds College where his dad worked, he freaked and cried and cried. From then on he wouldn't en-ter another barn," said Karen.

It took three summers of gently exposing Mark to animals tly exposing Mark to animals before he got over that fear. To see him ride was achieving a milestone for the whole family. Karen credits Mark's big sis-ter Sarah, six years his senior, and her love of horses for helping him.

"She really wanted him to participate in MVSRA and having her there with him for the first time was all he needed. He as hooked right away," said Karen.

is one of many riders in MVSRA who have obstacles to overcome and riding helps.

Shelene Williams, assistant instructor with the Canadian Therapeutic Riding Association (CanTRA) said MVSRA enables riders to interact with volun-teers and animals they wouldn't otherwise experience.

"For a lot of these people s are another animal they usually don't get to interact

Physical benefits come from the motion the horse provides.

"A horse's walk is the same as a person's. If you take somewith an abnormal gait or walk and put them on a horse with a normal walk it provides of correction, Shelene.

Sara Johnson, 9-years-old of Didsbury, thanks Fancy with an apple and some carrots.

Riders put rarely used mus cles to work getting on the horse and staying up (some with the use of volunteer side walkers) thus strengthening their muscles.

For someone with cerebral palsy it can cause their muscles to relax, for someone with low muscle tone it strengthens muscles. Riding also causes brain stimulation.

They are in a different en vironment using new vocabu-lary and learning new skills," said Shelene. The program can be modified to fit every rider. If someone needs to work on vocabulary, it's done. If listening skills and applying what they learn needs improvement, can be done too.

"Riders experience a real sense of accomplishment and gain confidence when riding." There is a lot of interaction with volunteers and people from the community who riders wouldn't normally be spending time with, and that has long-term social benefits for them.

Gary Piper has been bring-ing his horses to MVSRA for more than 12 years.
"I'm just there, that's all. It's no big deal," he said, knowing MVSRA brings immeasurable quality of life to its riders.

Gary's involvement in therapeutic riding began with his wife's disabled brother, who visited their farm to ride. When the brother became involved in MVSRA so did Gary

The riders have fun and we (volunteers) do too," said Gary.
"Years ago people with severe disabilities were put in the closet - I think it is time for them to get out and have fun."

Gary is a special friend to many of the riders but none more than Tyler, a young man severely disabled by cerebral palsy.

"Tyler loves Gary!" said Shelene.

"Whenever Tyler is in the same room as Gary he begins to vocalize and tries to get his attention. When Gary is with Tyler his smile lights up.

Although Gary tries to mini-mize the effect he has on Tyler, one can tell it goes both ways

"Tyler likes everyone, I treat him no different than anyone else. If he misbehaves I tell him and he knows

Gary said it's MVSRA that makes a big difference in Tyler's

"If you look at Tyler's hands when he gets there, they're cold. Get him out of the chair and put him on a horse they warm right up.

Tyler lives for that, he loves it. You put him on a horse and he has mobility he never had before. On a horse Tyler can go anywhere the chair won't allow him to.

For a horse to participate in MVSRA it has to be proof.

Linda Leggette, a volunteer for the past four years, brings three horses to the program.

A horse must sometimes endure uncontrolled leg movements from its rider, loud noises and things being thrown during planned activities.

"We have tested horses by throwing balls at them, making loud noises and bouncing around in the saddle."

"I think all the horses in the program are phenomenal," said

Gary owns two horses that pass the rigorous testing and is working on two more.

It is hard to find the right horse willing to stand still be tween loading ramps, used to mount riders. Patiently horses wait for their riders to be comfortable, steadily they walk, loving the attention bestowed on them from loving riders.

Mark loves the trail ride most. He is so excited during the days leading up to the event, said Karen, thankful the day has finally arrived.

The conclusion of every 10 week riding session is cel-ebrated with a trail ride, barbeque and awards ceremony.

For many it is the biggest social event of the year, with riders and their families, instructors and volunteers attendon this day, June 24th, Mark proudly accepted the Earl Stewart award for horsemanship, showing the trophy off to his brother as soon as he got home.

Sara Johnson, a 9-year-old from Didsbury who also brought home a trophy, got her biggest thrill of the night by giving Linda's horse Fancy a card, an apple and some carrots - a small thank you for their special time together.

RESPONSIBLE GARDENING

ith pleasure and pride

by Deborah Whitemore

As most of you know, I be lieve in landscape management that is environmentally, economically and humanly re-sponsible, hence the title of my column. I'm sure that you can imagine my pleasure when I read the article "New Weed Control Program" in the June 25, 2003 edition of the Didsbury Review. For the past two-plus years as both a seasonal worker first and then as the Horticulture Technician for the Town of Didsbury I put much time and energy into reearching and educating the Town and the townspeople about proper greenspace maintenance which would reduce or eliminate the need for chemical controls being applied to our public grounds. There were many times that I felt like I was talking to deaf ears and that all my efforts were being dismissed as a waste of time. Now I know that this wasn't true, that in fact all my hard work was being noticed and the proof is in the fact that the Town of Didsbury is now ap-plying my advice and suggestions in a greenspace mainte-nance program that will show great results in the health of our parks and landscapes and is safe for our children and our environment. I would imagine too that they will now start applying the use of the biological control agents that I spent 2 years raising (and are now worth about $1500.00) to con trol Scentless Chamomile around the lagoon and other sensitive ecosystems

Biological control agents are another great tool that can be used in a responsible gardening used in a responsible gardening regime. Simply put, Biocontrol is the use of living entities to control a pest. I'm sure most of you know that ladybugs are great hunters and consumers of aphids but they are not the only friends we have for controlling oth insect and weed pests This method of pest control has become so effective and so popular that you can now purchase various predatory insects through companies that will ship them and also government

Most of the insects used for control of weeds are not native to our environment but then neither are the weeds that the insects are used to control. Of-ten, if not all the time, noxious and restricted weeds are plants that have been introduced from outside the country. Conse quently there are no naturally xisting control agents for them. Various government en-tities around the world work very diligently to find an appro-priate control agent that will not consume anything but the target pest and once strict parameters have been established for each the insect species, then and only then, these agents become available for purchase

In regards to non-exotic pests, usually unwanted insects, there are now many com-panies that sell ladybugs, lacewings, parasitic wasps (don't worry, they don't sting), nematodes and other lovely multi-legged creatures that will look after our gardens even when we aren't there to keep an eye on things. When it comes to ladybugs, I wait until my daughter or one of her friends comes along with a con-tainer full of lady bugs and ask where she/he collected them and then go and collect a bunch of my own. After that it's just a matter of placing the container in my garden, removing the lid and stepping back to let nature take it's course. Time and time again I have had com-plete success controlling aphids this way - and I didn't have to spray a single thing. I always think of this as an example of how wonderfully nature takes care of herself if we just let her do her work.

As I said, I hope the Town now starts to employ nature's little helpers. My hat is off to the Town for starting to work with rather than against Mother Nature. I'm so glad I was able to help. If you have any tips, original project ideas that you would like to share, or questions you can mail them to Box 1839, Didsbury, AB TOM OWO or email them to info@excalibur-landscape.com 0W0 or email them to info@excalibur-landscape.com

Local artist wins big at Calgary Stampede

If you're thinking of heading to the Calgary Stampede this summer, be sure to check out the awardwinning drawing in Hall D of the Round-Up Centre by local artist Stacey Jensen.

The 18-year-old's pencil drawing entitled "Generations Ago" of an old Chief Indian earned her first prize and a $1000.00 scholarship in the Western Canada Showcase. Only six such scholarships are offered at the annual art competition - three for southern Alberta and three for the city of Calgary. Jensen chose the subject matter for her drawing not only because of how well it fit with the western theme requirements for the competition but also because she enjoys working with her chosen medium. "Working with pencil and scratchboard are two of my favorites...I think you can get more detail with pencil and scratchboard is very fine, picky work as well."

Jensen's artistic talents have been cultivated for the past six or seven years by her teacher and mentor, Joyce Mullen. "She was only 11 or 12-years-old when she started with me," says Mullen.

"I had a look at some of the drawings she was working on before the competition and told her that one of these was going to be a prize winner - I just knew it.

While the news of Jensen's latest scholarship win came as a pleasant surprise to the grade 12 graduate, this isn't the first time she's won big at Stampede art competitions. 'I have entered in the Stampede for four years now and have won two other firsts." Both of these, Jensen explains, were also pencil drawings - one of an Alberta rose and one of a cowboy.

Town keeps new Director of Operations hopping

Chris McKenna, Director of

They say if you want something done, ask a busy erson. So goes the mantra for Chris McKenna, the Town of Didsbury's new Director of Operations.

Since taking over the position in March, McKenna's been literally swamped with projects related to the maintenance and upkeep of virtually every town owned facility including the likes of the town offices, memorial complex, and all parks and "I have 14 staff that work under me in the summer and about 10 or 11 in the winter as well, so it can get pretty crazy around here most days.

Right now the project occupying most of McKenna's time is the work being done for the new Memorial Park.

"We have the concert bowl ready but there's still four ball diamonds to go in yet and we're still working on a number of other things related to the project.'

Despite some hectic days ahead, the pace of his new job is nothing new for McKenna who has held similar positions in both Airdrie and Stettler along with one posting as Operations Manager for the Edmonton Coliseum. McKenna and his Christine, now reside in Didsbury. They have two - Laura 23 and daughters Jenny 21.

Lutheran Church to be transformed into Rancho Roundup

different about Redeemer Lutheran Church these days. Brightly coloured posters are being hung from the doors, festive Mexican music can be heard echoing from inside and a certain, unmistakable southwestern feel is beginning to emerge. Though the new look may seem unusual to some, organizers of this year's Vacation Bible School are already well into the festive mood and eager to swing open the gate to "Rancho Roundup" July 14th - 18th from 9:30 am 12:00 noon.

All children between the ages of five and 12-years-old are encouraged to come out and learn more about how Jesus, the Good Shepherd, leads his sheep "baaaack" home. Throughout the course of the week, children will be introduced to what Jesus meant when He said, "I am the good Shepherd" at the make believe location of a southwestern sheep farm.

"Today's children may not as easily understand the idea of how Jesus the Good Shepherd cares for them and loves them," says Organizer, Joyce Magnus. "But we really believe Rancho Roundup will help bridge that gap, especially with the many, many activities we have to go along with our theme this year."

In addition to the songs, games, crafts, fellowship, skits and Bible readings children will be exposed to, each registrant will once again be able to earn "fun" tokens which they can use later to purchase gently used items from the VBS store. "We'll have it stocked with dozens of fun things for kids to buy...stuffed animals, Barbies, puzzles, candies, balls and toy cars," explains Magnus. Tokens are awarded for such things as attendance, Bible memory verses, take-home projects and whether or not they bring a friend. Anyone interested in registering their child for Rancho Roundup Vacation Bible School at Redeemer Lutheran Church can call 335-3161. Registrations will also be accepted on July 14th at the Church. "It's an excellent opportunity for children to have fun, hear the gospel and meet some friends." some friends."

QUESTION: My teen daughter, Cynthia, and I have incredible fights sometimes. No one has ever gotten to me in quite the way she can. We actually yell at each other when these battles are going on. How unusual is that kind of conflict between mothers and daughters? And hope for us?

DR. DOBSON: Unfortunately, it is very common. Many psychologists have described a "thing" that occurs between some mothers and their teenage daughters. Even though they love each other, the friction between them can generate a lot of heat.

It probably results from a phenomenon that has been called "two women in the kitchen" -- a kind of natural competitiveness that occurs between females in the famseveral years.

I know women who would give their lives for their daughters, yet they say with fire in their eyes, "I don't even like her very much right now." That appears to be what you and your teenager are experiencing at this time.

Is there hope for a better relationship in years to come?

Yes, I believe you will overcome it. Getting Cynthia through adolescence and into adulthood will change everything. I wouldn't be surprised if she didn't become one of your best friends down the road. So, take heart. A better day is coming.

QUESTION: But what can we do in the meantime? How can I deal with this wildcat who lives under my roof? DR. DOBSON: Before I answer, tell me what your husband's relationship with Cynthia is?

 ${\bf QUESTION}:$  It's very good. She doesn't pull the same stuff on him that she does with me. What are you getting at

DR. DOBSON: He may hold the key to the tension in your home. Fathers can play a valuable role as peacemakers and mediators at a time like this.

They can help you ventilate anger and find acceptable compromises where they are appropriate.

The father permitted her to roam freely and climb on the bleachers, but he set up definite limits regarding how far she could stray.

He took her by the hand and walked with her to a stripe painted on the gym floor.

"You can play all around the building, Janie, but don't go past this line," he instructed her.

Dad had no sooner returned to his seat than the tod-

She stopped at the border for a moment, then flashed a grin over her shoulder to her father and deliberately placed one foot over the line as if to say, "Whacha gonna do about it?" Virtually every parent the world over has been asked the same question at one time or another.

Edwards to play in "The Brick Super Tournament"

Jason Edwards

After working very hard in his young hockey career, 10-year-old Jason Edwards of Didsbury has earned the right to represent Southern Alberta at "The Brick Super Tournment" which will be held later this month in Edmonton at month in Edmonton at West Edmonton Mall. In order to play on this

In order to play on this team, all players must have been born in 1993. This will be the fourteenth year that the Annual AAA Brick Tournment will happen, after it was started by Bill Comrie who owns the Brick. Comrie's son, Mike, currently plays for the Edmonton Oilers, but was also a part of this program.

In order to be drafted onto this team the program director and coaches watched players throughout Southern Alberta (Red Deer south) during the winter and invited players, one being Edwards, to attend tryouts.

Of those players that tried out Edwards was selected to join the team, and without hesitation he joined.

Edwards is the only player from n e i g h b o u r i n g community, and the only player from a community as small as Didsbury. The team has been out on the ice each and every weekend since April, and already their hard work has paid off when they brought home a silver medal from tournament Saskatoon on the May long weekend.

Edward's first game is today, July 2.

Edwards has always picked hockey over other sports, adding that it has been a great experience for him.
